Library Management System

Serah Michaels

Target Users

The target users for this program are library staff and library patrons, who are currently not using a digital management system and are manually keeping track of their inventory and reservations.

Problems this system solves

This system is intended for use by small libraries that do not already employ a digital solution, and are using traditional bookkeeping. Traditional bookkeeping can be time-consuming and error-prone, and manually keeping record of books can result in errors and an inaccurate inventory. Using this program can provide a library with a centralized and organized catalog. Due dates and copies available will become easier to track due to checkouts being linked to user accounts.
